In the early 2000's HealthNow New York, Inc. was gaining momentum in their industry. They were growing at an unprecedented rate and it became apparent that they were running out of room in their existing facility. In 2005 they began planning their new Corporate Headquarters building. The project became the largest commercial development in Buffalo, NY in 35 years.

The ultra-modern 469,000 sq. ft. facility was designed to house 2,000(+) employees. The facility was built to be modern in both style and function, while maintaining a green footprint. Throughout the planning process HealthNow stressed the importance of creating an environment that streamlined the workflow and satisfied the employee's requests for a comfortable personal workspace.

Davies Office Refurbishing, Inc. and Allsteel were selected to provide the systems furniture. HealthNow loved Allsteel's Terrace with Reach solution. It allowed them to maximize their space while maintaining an open floor plan, and give each employee a comfortable space with more storage than standard workstations. Allsteel also gave HealthNow the flexibility to use custom components that were Designed by Davies, for HealthNow.

Davies provided all of the Design, Space planning, Scheduling, Project Management, Labor, Order placement, and Inventory management for this project. HealthNow knew that the workstations and layouts would evolve throughout the project and trusted Davies to adjust the floorplans, labor, and orders, on the fly, to successfully complete the project, without any hiccups. Davies delivered! The facility was completed, on time, as planned, and perfectly executed, in August of 2007.

Davies also helped HealthNow with the management and removal of their existing assets. A service no other furniture provider could help them with.
